Happy Thanksgiving

We Want to Hear from You!

We are thinking about updating our newsletter and website, but we need your help! Please let us know what you like and dislike about our newsletter and website by completing these surveys: Newsletter feedback survey and Website feedback survey.

Update on the Assessment Process

The last BHDDH Newsletter provided information about the new DD 3-step assessment process. The last part of the process was called the "Individual Meeting". This third part of the assessment process will now be called the "Individual Follow-up", and all individuals will receive this follow up.

The purpose of the follow up is to provide participants and their identified supports the chance to share more details about themselves and to discuss any additional support needs with the SIS social caseworker. The SIS social caseworker will follow up with individuals about one week after the SIS-A and Additional Needs and Support Questionnaire are done.

This follow-up will build upon the SIS-A and Additional Needs and Support Questionnaire to make sure all support needs have been reviewed. The combination of the SIS score, the Additional Needs and Support Questionnaire results, and the information provided through the Individual Follow-Up will be the basis for calculating each individual's funding level. The more information we have, the better. We want to make sure everyone's voice has been heard and that we have identified everything each participant needs.

Update on ISP Meetings: Facilitating Success Conversations

BHDDH Social Caseworkers (SCW) will be starting something new this year. During your ISP meeting, a SCW will share information with you about any new Division resources, processes, and supports. The SCW will also ask you questions about your services, such as:

1. Did you get the services and supports included in your ISP?
2. How happy are you with your level of community participation?
3. Are you working now or interested in working?

The SCW will continue to check-in with you each month to see how you are doing. The SCW's goal is to ensure you're getting the supports you want and to encourage and support your efforts to be involved in your community and to be meaningfully employed.

RI Developmental Disabilities Council Receives 2023 Diversity Equity and Inclusion Award

The Rhode Island Developmental Disabilities Council (RIDDC) announced that they received Providence Business News's Annual Summit and Awards program on Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion. Specifically, RIDDC was the winner in the Non-profit/Social Services category, where they were recognized among 12 other businesses and organizations for their efforts in diversity and inclusion. The presentation will be made at a breakfast ceremony and summit on December 7 at 9:00 AM at the Crowne Plaza in Warwick.

The scope of projects is wide-ranging and multi-faceted, with RIDDC working collaboratively with the RI Cross Disability Coalition (RICDC) in expanding outreach to RI businesses, as well as to the I/DD members, families, and community agencies supporting adults with disabilities. Among them:

- The Rhode Island Developmental Disabilities Council created the Rhode Island Cross Disability Coalition under its advocacy mission in 2009. Individuals with all disabilities can connect and talk about what is important in their lives and learn leadership skills to advocate for what they can do together to improve quality for all people. Also, the Coalition creates an opportunity for members to become familiar with various services available from agencies in Rhode Island, and to learn what support the agencies can provide.
- The RICDC spearheaded the project A New Way of Thinking... RI WINS (Workforce Investment & New Solutions) about the personal futures of people with disabilities so that individuals and their families make more informed choices, have more opportunities for living meaningful and inclusive lives, and receive the necessary support for preparing them for employment in Rhode Island's workforce, either in wage jobs or potential business-within-a-business connections. One of the components of this project is a Speakers' Bureau of 20+ individuals with disabilities who have been giving presentations all across the state in the areas of employment, self-employment, meaningful lives, and human rights to High Schools, Transition Centers, and community agencies supporting individuals with disabilities.
- The Rhode Island Cross Disability Coalition established a new collaborative project with the RI Developmental Disabilities Council and Skills for RI's Future. They designed a model to transform and enhance the workforce model in RI to educate employers about the abilities of people with disabilities and their potential for contributions to improving RI's economic development which spotlights the abilities of the disability community. That initiative continues, with participating community agencies continuing to receive monthly consultative support and strategies identified for follow-up with RI businesses for potential job opportunities for adults with disabilities.
- The RI Cross Disability Coalition secured funding for its project from the Department of Behavioral Health, Developmental Disabilities and Hospitals (BHDDH) to work with RIDDC and Skills for RI as the lead agencies heading up a collaborative effort by 14 organizations and agencies to professionally train their staff with new approaches. These approaches include learning to connect and engage with Rhode Island employers through informational interviews to determine their workforce needs and potential solutions, including future job opportunities for people with disabilities.

The project also included working collaboratively with the Business Services Division of the Rhode Island Secretary of State's Office and a diverse committee of individuals with extensive experience in this area to develop a new 3-part "Diversity, Equity, Inclusion and Accessibility" educational series. The series, which is offered by the RI Secretary of State's Office provides RI employers with:

- Information about the benefits of creating a more inclusive workforce,
- Ideas for action steps to initiate to build diversity,
- Details about the incentives and resources available to RI businesses, and
- Opportunities to hear the perspectives of RI employers who creatively manage a diverse workforce.

"We're just thrilled," notes Sue Babin, RIDDC special projects director. "This award reflects the efforts of many people within RIDDC/RICDC and community partners who have collaborated on various aspects of "A New Way of Thinking and RI WINS" to help build more inclusive and meaningful lives for people with disabilities. We're excited by the synergy we've been able to build with people with disabilities and their families, RI employers, community agencies supporting individuals with disabilities, and the momentum that goes along with it. We're so happy to share this recognition with all who are involved, and are excited for what's to come, as there's so much more to do."

Among its well-established projects, the RIDDC has taken a multi-faceted approach to Diversity, Equity & Inclusion, having developed a successful nationally recognized self-employment business program for people with disabilities and other aspiring entrepreneurs, complete with a series of eight classes, one-on-one mentoring, direct sales opportunities for small business owners, ongoing networking support, as well as a mini-grant program for its participants. The program is funded by the State Department of Labor and Training (DLT). At the outset, entrepreneurs are connecting to their local and business communities while developing their small businesses and demonstrating that people with disabilities are also contributing to the growth of RI's economy.

RIDDC Executive Director, Kevin Nerney, citing the organization's goals and mission, notes "Leadership and Policy changes are among our top priorities. This award attests to the value of the projects, programs, educational and collaborative efforts designed to improve the lives of people with disabilities. And it shows the unmistakable value of the people who work with us to demonstrate daily their passion for making a difference in those lives. We're truly honored to receive this award from Providence Business News, an organization that intentionally recognizes these efforts and collaborated with us to help make it happen."

Google is Making Apps More Accessible

Google updated their applications (apps) so they are easier to use and are more accessible to people with disabilities. Highlights of the new updates are:

1. Google and Map searches will tell you if a business is owned by someone with a disability.
2. Google Maps has a new feature called Lens in Maps. Lens in Maps will use your camera to learn about the community you are in. The app will then use a screen reader to tell you things about the community, like restaurants and bus stops around you.
3. Google Maps will let you search for wheelchair accessible walking routes, like stair-free walking directions. The app will also let you search for public places that are wheelchair accessible.
4. Google Assistant Routines will let you add your own pictures and create your own home screen. This will make your daily routine list more personal.
5. Google Camera will let you zoom in on things to see better. It will work like a magnifying glass.

Silver Linings

The holidays are a fun time of year. They can also be stressful. Just for fun, check out these creative ways to celebrate while practicing coping skills:

1. Show off your artistic side by making your own Thanksgiving decorations
2. Ask your family or friends to join you in special Fall activities

3. Make your favorite festive fall snacks, like cookies, pie, or pizza
4. Take time to relax with fall themed deep breathing exercises

Federal Efforts are Underway to Improve Access to Clinical Trials for People with Disabilities

The Food and Drug Omnibus Reform Act (FDORA), signed into law by President Biden on December 29, 2022, includes several provisions aimed at increasing diversity in clinical trials. Section 3603 requires public workshops to gather input from a variety of stakeholders, including patients and disability advocates. According to the law, these workshops must solicit feedback on approaches to support the participation of underrepresented groups and people, considerations regarding informed consent, and inclusion and exclusion criteria for people with I/DD.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is holding a two-day virtual public workshop to promote diversity in clinical trials on November 29 and 30. The information gathered during the workshops, in addition to comments submitted by the public, will form the basis for a report that the FDA will submit to Congress. The following sessions are of special interest:

- November 29, 2023, 1:25-1:55 PM
Session 3B: Approaches to Support the Inclusion and Clinical Study Participation of Individuals with Disabilities Including Intellectual or Developmental Disabilities
- November 30, 2023, 10:05-10:35 AM
Session 3C: Approaches to Support the Inclusion and Clinical Study Participation of Individuals with Mental Illness

You can view the full agenda for the two-day workshop and register for the event via Zoom. You can also submit comments for 60 days afterwards (until January 29, 2024).

Why are Clinical Trials Important?

Clinical trials evaluate the safety and effectiveness of medical interventions like drugs, vaccines, and devices. To understand how the results of clinical trials will translate into the real world, a trial must have a diverse pool of research participants. Despite this being the case, people from underserved communities have historically been underrepresented in clinical trials.

One in four people have disabilities, yet disabled people are frequently excluded from clinical trials. Recent research shows that nearly 75% of clinical trials either directly or indirectly excluded people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD). For example, few trials for Alzheimer's disease have included people with Down syndrome, even though they are disproportionately affected by Alzheimer's and dementia. Furthermore, people with I/DD want to participate in clinical trials and have strong confidence in their own ability to do so.

While the exclusion of people with disabilities may sometimes be appropriate given the nature of the research being conducted, too often it is based on stereotypes or biases against specific disabilities or a failure to take into account accommodations that can enable participation.

The exclusion of disabled people from a clinical trial may impair its usefulness by excluding populations most in need of the intervention being tested. Limiting the participation of people with disabilities in clinical trials also deprives them of benefits that may be offered through the trial, such as cutting-edge diagnostic or medical care that is unavailable elsewhere.

Employment Add-On Budget Requests

Add-On Budget

As of October 1, 2023 if you are looking for more or new Supported Employment funding (money) you must request it through an Add-On Budget amendment request.

You will not have to take away from your community support funds (money) in order to get more or new employment assistance. This gives you extra funding for supports that will help you find and keep a job. There are currently 4 services available on the Add-On Budget.

1. Job Development

For help finding a job

- Limit of 200 hours per year.
- You are encouraged to spend the same number of hours looking for work as you would want to work.

2. Job Coaching

For help learning a new job

- Support to help you learn a new job or task.
- Provided at work during your shift.
- Temporary- until you learn the skill.

3. Job Retention

Support to help you
keep a job

- Service provided to you after job coaching has ended.
- Provider checks in with you and your job to make sure everything is going well.

4. Personal Supports in the Workplace

Non-work-related supports you need at all times

- This is not an employment service, but is part of the add-on budget.
- For supports you need in any setting, such as personal care or behavioral supports.

A detailed Guide to Employment Add-On Budget Requests to providers is available by clicking on the link or by scanning the QR code below. The purpose of this guidebook is to give you information in detail on how to complete and add on budget request on a separate page on the purchase order.

Event: What is SIS-A? An Interview with BHDDH

Time: November 28 at 6:00 PM

Location: [Zoom \[r20.rs6.net\]](https://r20.rs6.net)

Join us for an exclusive interview with Donna Standish, from Behavioral Healthcare, Developmental Disabilities, and Hospitals (BHDDH), as we delve into the Supports Intensity Scale (SIS-A). The SIS-A is a vital tool for individuals and families navigating the complexities of support systems. It helps in understanding the unique support needs of individuals with developmental disabilities. During this webinar, Donna Standish, an expert in the field, will share her insights, experiences, and expertise on SIS-A.

To secure your spot, please [RSVP \[r20.rs6.net\]](https://r20.rs6.net) [\[r20.rs6.net\]](https://r20.rs6.net) [\[r20.rs6.net\]](https://r20.rs6.net) by November 27th. The presentation will be recorded and made available to all registrants after the event concludes. So, whether you can make it or not, we encourage you to register so that you can receive a link to the recording.

This presentation is part of the RIPIN Self-Directed Support Program, designed to empower individuals and families with the knowledge and tools they need. If you have any questions or need assistance, feel free to contact us at selfdirectedsupport@ripin.org.

Looking forward to seeing you at the webinar!
